Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from When Tarboro Was Incorporated: Also, Reverend James Moir, Edgecombe Changes Her County Seat, and Germantown, Pennsylvania Many silent lessons may be acquired from one page of an old book. When I first learned that there was in the possession of the Register of Deeds of Edgecombe a plat of the town of Tarboro, as originally laid off in 1760, I did not lose much time in making a special note of it. A number of visits were then paid to the vault where the records are kept and a careful study was made of page 524, Book D., which contains the Plan just referred to, with the lots, streets, bounds, common, etc., as laid out by order of the Rev. James Moir, Lawrence Toole, great-great-great grandfather of the present Editor of the Southerner, Aquilla Sugg, Elisha Battle, and Benjamin Hart, its first Commissioners. Anyone, who examines this Plan must give considerable allowance for educational deficiencies, to-wit: Lawrence is spelled Lawrance, Hart is written Heart, Moire instead of Moir, lotts for lots, and commons for common;...
