Then quickly remove the flame and the spot will remain bright. Now, again bring the flame to bear on the same piece of lead, keeping the point of the inner flame at least 1/4 inch away from the lead. It will melt and flow together, but will be covered with a coat of gray oxide and the union will not be perfect. Slowly withdraw the flame, and before the flame is entirely removed the spot will be heavily coated with a thick blue oxide, under which the lead will not unite. C, in Fig. 21, shows the appearance of the flame when too much air has been admitted and it is on the point of going out from lack of gas. The proper way to use the gas is to open wide the gas cock M on the generator, and do any regulating of the flame with the gas cock / on the mixing fork. These cocks should have pieces of heavy wire brazed or soldered lengthwise of the handles, Fig. 16, h and i, so as to form lever handles. This will allow the gas and air cocks to be closed or opened by gently tapping the levers h and i, which is the only way that a slight variation can be had, for if you try to regulate them with the finger you will constantly open or close them too much, and the result is...
